MOE's Black Illumination 2006 will be held on June 18, 2006.

Japan's Ministry of the Environment (MOE) will hold a nationwide "Lights Down" and CO2 reduction campaign nicknamed "Black Illumination 2006" on June 18, 2006. About 38,000 facilities all over Japan, including major landmarks such as the Tokyo Tower, Tokyo Station, and business facilities including shopping centers, will participate in the campaign. The MOE lends its official support for Candle Night.

Black Illumination 2006 will be slightly different from those held in past years. On that evening, a World Cup soccer tournament game is scheduled between Croatia and Japan. World Cup Soccer is very popular in Japan and many people may want to watch the game. The TV station that will broadcast the game will participate in the Black Illumination 2006 campaign. We might enjoy a different atmosphere on that night.
